France Plans
To Explode
'Baby' Bomb

PARIS (UPI)—French sources said Friday that France plans to explode its first thermonuclear device on a South Pacific island by mid-1964, under a speeded-up program to give the French an independent nuclear force.

The sources said the test would involve a "baby" hydrogen bomb about halfway between an atomic bomb and a true hydrogen bomb, and would probably take place in the Gambier Islands, about 1,000 miles southeast of Tahiti.

Your Good Health

Tragedy Needed for Alcoholic
To Decide to Stop Drinking

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

I have a letter in fact I have several startlingly like it from a wife whose husband insists that he isn't an alcoholic because he never drinks in the daytime. Only in the evening.

He insists that he can stop any time he wants to. But he never wants to. Every night it's the same story: A series of double shots of liquor, after which he becomes sensitive to any remark he thinks is critical. He argues, becomes explosive that he is right about everything, and everybody else is wrong.

AREN'T GOOD SIGNS

Now I can't say that such a man necessarily is an alcoholic, but the personality changes and the touchiness and the assertions that he "can stop" but doesn't, aren't good signs. Many of these alcoholics keep insisting that they can "take it or leave it alone," and cite the periods of sobriety as "proof."

But the real proof isn't the occasional or even the frequent

"dry periods." The proof is in carrying blood from the heart the repeated "falling off the wagon."

They can't be convinced that there are potential dangers in overindulgence. Brain deterioration, liver disorders, loss of work accuracy.

REAL CATASTROPHE

They have to encounter some real "catastrophe." An accident to themselves or someone else; a lost week or lost weekend; loss of job; gradual economic decline; loss of friends; alienation of family.

Alcoholism is a disease, a mixture of physical and emotional factors; but alcoholics ARE salvageable. However you can't preach them into reforming until they have acknowledged their problem. Usually this means reaching some form of disaster or crisis before, at last, genuinely making up their minds that they have to stop.

Reds Slam Test Ban Door

GENEVA (AP) — Negotiations to ban nuclear weapons tests seemed headed toward collapse Friday night despite recent hopes that the Cuban settlement could point the way to a breakthrough. All sides talked of failure after a day of fruitless debate.

Less than three weeks after the new round of talks opened Feb. 12, the Soviet Union slammed the door on any detailed negotiations for a treaty as long as the West rejects the Soviet offer of two or three annual on-site inspections.

negotiators appeared to bring the talks to the verge of collapse. A neutral delegate told reporters the talks "are at zero point."

William C. Foster, chief U.S. negotiator, said: "We want to negotiate. Unfortunately, we have found that thus far the Soviet Union does not."

Joseph Garber, British minister of state, said "we must face the fact that the Soviet Union is seeking to veto any discussion on any matter except its own issues."

Tsarapkin snapped back: "This is a characteristic tendency to bring out again the old scarecrow of the Soviet Union exercising a veto right... The Western powers make a terrible noise over the veto whenever they want to disrupt agreement and have no other argument."

Tsarapkin also rejected a proposal by the Canadian delegate, Lt.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, to draw up a detailed agenda for further negotiations.

Rude Names

MR. PEARSON has been reported as saying that the only thing lacking in making his election campaign an absolute success is that no American newspaper had yet called him a dirty name.

Though undoubtedly Mr. Pearson's remark was facetiously made, it is enough to indicate that he regards Mr. Diefenbaker's acknowledged unpopularity in Washington circles as something of a political advantage for the prime minister.

Mr. Pearson's attitude echoes strangely of the dim past when elections in this country could be won or lost on an anti-Yankee platform, or more recently when the post-war Communist label of "fascist beast" was proudly worn and eagerly sought after by politicians in nearly every democratic country as the mark of honor of a super-patriotic defender of the free enterprise system.

Even today Western statesmen point with pride at the wounds inflicted upon them by the Kremlin in order to enhance their reputations among their own people. Every criticism aimed at them by Soviet spokesmen is another honor for their political battle-flag.

It is only recently that Mr. Pearson has joined this elite circle of anti-Red knights, having been awarded the Soviet accolade of "tool of Washington." But even in this he must play a junior role to Mr. Diefenbaker who has long been under Russian fire for his attacks on Soviet colonialism.

However, it is a step in the right direction, but one, it is hoped, that will not entice him to make too many sallies into the international battlefield when there are more important things to be done at home. Certainly his ambition to be called a rude name by somebody in the United States is hardly a laudable one at a time like this.

Liberal Choice

SINCE THIS newspaper believes it is a good thing for community and country when young or youngish men are moved to serve their fellowmen by entering the political lists, it congratulates the contenders in their spirited bid for the Liberal nomination in the Victoria federal riding.

In the result Mr. David Groos, who this time has changed his venue from Esquimalt-Saanich to the city constituency, won the honor by a margin which although about as narrow as it was possible to be gives him the official right to carry the Liberal colors.

As with the Conservative nominating convention the occasion produced the kind of rivalry and divergence common to most parties when ambition is keen and a laudable desire to be the chosen candidate is evident. Unlike the Conservatives, however, the Liberals at first kept the voting count secret.

This and some associated circumstances may invite for a portion of Liberal adherents a little dubiety over the proceedings and undoubtedly these have affected Mr. Foster Isherwood's decision to run in opposition as an independent candidate.

The latter might have cause to feel that he has been rather let down and his disappointment is easy enough to understand. He was a newcomer last year and his entry then suffered under the handicap that faces all those seeking the nomination in a riding not domestically their own, although there is ample and distinguished precedent for candidatures of this kind. He is now in practice here, however, and he put up such a splendid showing last June, running the sitting member close to the wire in the election itself, that he could be excused for wondering why he did not win the Liberal favor this time.

Mr. Groos lost out to Mr. George Chatterton in his two attempts to win the Esquimalt-Saanich parliamentary seat, but he is well qualified to uphold the candidature that has been bestowed on him.

Accolade of Interest

ANOTHER nomination of interest is that of Mr. Edward Lum, who has won the accolade of the Social Credit Party in Esquimalt-Saanich and will carry its colors in that constituency.

Here also is a young man answering the challenge of public service in the senior parliamentary realm.

Mr. Lum is following in the footsteps of others of his racial background in entering the lists and his selection is a compliment to the Chinese-Canadian community of which he is a worthy and respected member.

It is also a reflection of the fine place which those of his heritage have won in this area, to which they have contributed much in the way of economic and social amenities.

Mr. Lum is to be congratulated on his selection as an aspirant for a seat at the centre of the nation's business.

Better Vistas

IF THE POWER poles downtown and their equally ugly appendages of lines had been taken down en masse overnight, Victoria would have gasped with delight at the change of scene. As it has happened, the poles and wiring have been disappearing gradually, almost as if they were being surreptitiously removed.

Nearly all of the thirty-odd blocks in which subterranean cables have been installed have now been cleared of their unsightly above-ground electrical systems, yet the change has been so gradual and unobtrusive that it probably impinged hardly at all on the consciousness of many citizens preoccupied with window-shopping and walk-and-waiting, or, at the wheels of their cars, with traffic.

But if one can recall in mind's eye for instance the heavy and in some cases leaning poles along Douglas, and their festoons of drooping dark wires, the present appearance of the street in comparison is most gratifying. Apart from the beautifying effect, too, the city's firemen must look thankfully on the alteration, which has partly removed from their potential work a handicap and a hazard.

The improvement is a distinct credit to the B.C. Electric and its successor B.C. Hydro, and to the civic administration too. It is now to be hoped that the work will not end permanently with the removal of the remaining short stretches of overhead wiring in the downtown area, but that it will be followed in due course by new programs along main thoroughfares elsewhere, and especially farther along Douglas Street as the main entrance and the visitor's introduction to Victoria.

"Maybe it's not such a bad idea."

In Australia and New Zealand

An Age of Ruins—and Confidence

By MANNING CLARK

WHEN Bertrand Russell left Australia in August of 1950 after a short visit, he said Australians were pioneers not only in the development of Australia, but in pointing the way to a happier destiny for man throughout the centuries to come.

"I leave your shores," he concluded, "with more hope for mankind than I had when I came among you."

As in other advanced industrial capitalist nations we have our Jeremiahs about those centuries to come. The demographers shake their heads gloomily about a coming world population explosion after which, they say, there will be standing room only on the earth. And how, they ask, will the Aussies and the Kiwis like that?

The anti-Communists here, as in other Western countries, chant their own song of doom, of a race of men so corrupted by luxury and ease as to fall an easy victim to the Communists from the north. The Communists prophesy that the age of affluence is but the Indian summer of capitalist society; that the preoccupation with evil and suffering by our poets, painters and novelists symbolizes the moral sickness of our society.

The priests and parsons, as in the Western world, preach about an age of ruins in which men put their faith in those "idols of corrupt hearts" such as material well-being and worldly happiness. Man by himself, they warn, cannot achieve happiness on earth or overcome those weaknesses which stem from his depravity.

Yet as in other Western countries the masses seem oblivious of the terrible fate which these secular and spiritual Jeremiahs predict for them: Prophesies of destruction or damnation seem quaint and queer to a people to whom life is one long round of pleasure.

Each month more people are buying speed-boats, motor-skis, electric barbecues, motor-cars, radiograms, television sets and deep-freeze equipment. Why should a generation which no longer produces bread in the sweat of its brow put questions to itself about the origin of human evil? Why should a generation in which the new technological revolution is rapidly effacing all outward and visible differences between classes take any notice of people who say that all history is the history of class struggles?

Yet in one sense it is an age of ruins in Australia and New Zealand, for amidst the gaiety and the confidence of a people who are creating material well-being and happiness for all, there lie the ruins of the ideologies which have fashioned their civilization. The three creative influences in that civilization—Protestant Christianity, Irish Catholicism and secular humanism—have lost touch with their original social function.

Historically, the Protestant parson was a moral policeman. In a society whose workers were drawn from the "off-scourings of British jails," and "the sweepings of Irish parishes," the colonial establishment found the Protestant parson a useful aid in their great task of achieving social order; he preached obedience, he warned them against the evils—strong drink, against lifting the petticoats of convict women for improper purposes, and gambling. In this way the parsons exposed themselves to the charges that they were just "civil servants in cassocks," and defenders of a philistine way of life.

So Protestant Christianity

became identified with British interests in Australia, and was held out as indispensable to a high material civilization and liberty. The explosion of that myth probably damaged Protestant Christianity as much as the higher criticism of the Bible and the publication of "The Descent of Man."

Historically the social function of the Catholic Church in Australia was to promote the worldly interests of the Irish people, to comfort them in their days of oppression, to clamor for their right to an equal share of wealth and power with their Protestant neighbors. Today Ireland's past weighs but lightly on the brain of the living in the Antipodes, as the ancient wounds of Danny Boy have been gradually healed by the affluent society.

At the same time the myths of the secular humanists have vanished as snow before the sun of affluence. They saw themselves as noble vessels through whom the old world evils of war, poverty, inequality, and class hatred would be eliminated from the world. They urged their new world followers to trust the brotherhood of man—to be mates; they saw themselves as pioneers of political and social democracy, architects of social welfare, the creators of a paradise for the working man.

But two world wars, the Russian revolution, the depression, the behavior of the Nazis, the victory of the Communists in China, the end of Australian and New Zealand economic dependence on the United Kingdom, and the revolutions in transport and communication have left the secular humanists just as out of date as some of the religious creeds. The advocates for the ideals of the old bush culture, for its mateship and its strident—"I'm a bloody Australian, and I'll always build well stick up for Australia"—have become the darling dodos of our society.

This confrontation of the ideologies of the past with the new material setting leads an air of unreality and at times tragic grandeur to the

Unfair Phrase

By GREGORY CLARK

IN Hamilton, Ontario, a magistrate had to dispose of a case in which a wrestler was accused of having hit a lady spectator with the flat of a shovel. Apparently it was one of those occasions in which a wrestler is flung from the ring and goes a little berserk on the sidelines. The magistrate, in disposing of the matter, said it was probably a case of horse-play carried too far, and he blamed the promoters more than the wrestler.

Now, this is all very well, except for one thing. We horse lovers suspect there is a slight disparagement of horses in that remark. Who ever saw horses behaving the way wrestlers behave, in private, let alone in public? I submit that I have never seen a horse that looked even remotely like a wrestler in his whole life. Even those great big fat horses you see at horse shows, jouncing around the show ring with their manes all braided, and with ribbons in their tails, don't look like wrestlers.

It is true the horse, after thousands of years of noble and ignoble service to mankind, dogmatic to death and the glue factory or the canned dog meat factory, is on his way out. But that is all the more reason we should not submit the memory of him to comedy, by comparing him with a wrestler. Let us adapt the phrase, and refer in future to the larger, lumpier shenanigans of mankind as "wrestler-play," rather than "horse-play."

Murky Outlook

By W. N. EWER from London

THE prospects for the Geneva disarmament conference are, at the moment, anything but bright. Hopes for a test ban agreement have all but vanished. On Soviet insistence, this subject—once regarded as of top priority—has been shelved almost indefinitely. At some future date there will be a consideration of procedure; that is all.

Instead, the Russians have produced a new list of subjects to which they now wish the conference to give priority. It is this which I find depressing. For these, and the Soviet proposals which accompany them, are not concerned with the reduction of armaments. They are essentially political and strategic. Not only that, they are essentially polemical. They are calculated to afford ample opportunity for propaganda attacks on the Western powers.

And Mr. Kuznetsov's speeches have made it unpleasantly plain that this is, in fact, their purpose. He has seized the opportunity for the most vehement attacks which we have heard for many months. There is a change in tone.

The Russians have passed again to the offensive. The NATO powers are accused of wishing to avoid any measure of disarmament of wishing to "step up the arms race," of planning war against the Soviet Union and its Allies.

The decision to station American Polaris submarines in the Mediterranean is denounced as a new attempt to disturb the balance of military power. The fact that the existing American missile bases in Turkey and Italy are being withdrawn is calmly ignored. The new Franco-German accord is denounced, without a shred of evidence, or even of plausibility, as preparation for war on the Soviet Union in pursuance of German "revanchist" aspirations.

And Mr. Kuznetsov revives and repeats the charge that NATO is an essentially aggressive military alliance.

Seen from Whitehall

Eyes on Syria

By ROBERT STEPHENS from London

THE calm detachment with which the latest revolution in Iraq has been watched from Whitehall is a measure of the change which has taken place in British policy towards the Middle East during the last few years. It also reflects the extent to which the Middle East has ceased to be one of the most serious areas of tension between Russia and the West.

When General Kassem's revolution took place in Iraq in 1958, it helped spark off a world crisis. U.S. troops landed in the Lebanon and British forces were sent to Jordan. The Russians massed troops in the Caucasus and for a few days it was touch and go whether East and West would be racing to enter Baghdad first. Mr. Khrushchev called for a summit meeting at the United Nations, but had to drop the idea under Chinese pressure.

But the crisis ended without further great power intervention. The UN was brought in to cover the withdrawal of the Americans from the Lebanon, and later on the British from Jordan. Iraq was left to withdraw from the Baghdad Pact and to follow its new line of neutrality. The Western oil consortium, the Iraq Petroleum Company, was able to carry on and expand production.

General Kassem turned to Russia as well as the West for military supplies and economic help. But there was a tacit understanding between Russia and the Western powers about the limits of their intervention in the central Arab area of the Middle East. This area was effectively neutralized, as far as direct military intervention was concerned, though both Russia and the West were free to try to extend their influence by political and economic means.

Thus, within this main area of the Middle East, the British gave up trying to organize an anti-Nasser front and took up a policy of "non-alignment" as between rival Arab governments. They re-established normal if not particularly friendly relations with the United Arab Republic and confined their most active policy to the development and maintenance of their presence in Southern Arabia and the oil sheikdoms of the Persian Gulf, especially

It was General Kassem's threatening claim to Kuwait in 1961 which brought Britain back into the old business of military intervention in Arab affairs. But although the name of Kuwait is always liable to rouse panic in the breasts of any Conservative cabinet in Britain, this intervention was obviously a reluctant one.

The crisis had been sparked off partly by a British attempt against which the Soviet Union and its associates have been reluctantly obliged to strengthen their defences.

Again, the facts are ignored or distorted for propaganda purposes. For the historical record is clear. The position when the North Atlantic Treaty was drawn up was this: after the war, all the Western powers had reduced their armies and armaments to a minimum. The Soviet Union alone maintained a vast armed force and massive armaments. Moreover, its attitude was a threatening one. Czechoslovakia had been absorbed—in the wake of Poland, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria—into the Soviet satellite bloc. There was also the blockade of Berlin aimed at forcing the Western powers out of the city.

It was in face of this Soviet "forward policy," backed by a great military superiority, that NATO was formed, as a purely regional defensive alliance in accordance with the United Nations Charter—and that the Western powers began the slow process of "re-armament."

Such bargains in the past have not infrequently been the prelude to some Soviet military or diplomatic move which can then be represented as made necessary by Western "aggressiveness." It may be that something is in preparation.

Or it may be that the Russians want to create another crisis atmosphere at the conference in the hope that the neutrals will urge the West to make concessions. If that is the Soviet game there is certainly no sign that the neutrals are prepared to play it.

Whatever the reasons, the effects are only too foreseeable. East-West relations can hardly be improved, or tensions lessened; this sort of thing does not help to create that better atmosphere for which one has been hoping.

The prospects for the Geneva conference are more murky than at any moment since it first met, nearly a year ago.

to disengage from some of her responsibilities in the Persian Gulf, by ending the Protectorate Treaty with Kuwait and recognizing Kuwait as a sovereign independent state. The solution of the crisis also showed the new look in British policy? For it was achieved by getting the states of the Arab League, including Egypt but not Iraq, to agree to send a force to Kuwait to replace the British troops.

The "non-alignment" policy began to waver against last September when a military coup overthrew the new Imam of the Yemen and President Nasser sent Egyptian troops to help the revolutionaries while the Jordanian and Saudi Arabian monarchies sent help in money and technicians to the Yemeni royalists. Britain held back from recognizing the revolutionary regime in the Yemen, ostensibly because it was not in full control of the country, but in fact because of development in neighboring Aden and the South Arabian Federation.

The British Foreign Office, on the basis of assurances from President Nasser that he had no hostile designs on Aden, was preparing to recognize the new Yemen regime. But the Colonial Office under Mr. Duncan Sandys opposed recognition until its plans to push through the merger of Aden and the South Arabian Federation had been completed. For some of the leading federation sheikhs, who could decide the fate of the merger, were supporting the royalists in the Yemen.

Hence the odd spectacle of the British legation being expelled from the Yemen for a few months after the revolution, while in Iraq the new government has been recognized by Britain within a few days of its seizing power.

From the British government's point of view, the new Iraqi regime looks like being an improvement on General Kassem in three respects. It has already adopted a more conciliatory attitude towards Kuwait. It is strongly anti-Communist. It may prove more realistic—though not necessarily less tough—in negotiations about oil with the IFC. It may be more friendly to President Nasser, but this may not necessarily be a bad thing if it helps to produce a more stable position in the Middle East.

If, on the other hand, Iraq and Egypt join forces to try to overthrow the existing regimes in Syria and Jordan, there could be dangerous instability. In Jordan both are likely to go cautiously, not because of love for King Hussein, but because of fear of Israeli military intervention if the status quo is disturbed. It is Syria that everyone, including the British, will now be watching for possible new storm signs in the Middle East.

Arms, Health Secondary

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker Friday sharpened his April 8 federal election campaign approach on two key questions, his health and nuclear arms, and said they were subsidiary to the larger questions of Canada's economic and political future.

In a press conference he said the principal issue in the election is the economic and political future of Canada, whether it is to be guided by the majority in Parliament or obstructed by the opposition and whether it is to be guided by made-in-Canada policies or foreign pressures. On two key questions he said:

Nuclear arms — "this has become an emotional issue which needs to be analyzed. I will deal with that and once analyzed, it will not be dealt with again. . . the issues are economics and politics, these are major issues and not one that has boiled up as an emotional question."

His health — "If the Liberal propaganda which has spread in all parts of the country had any basis in fact, I would not be here. . . I am in excellent health and anyone who doesn't think I am going to take part in this campaign in only the way a healthy man can, has a second think coming."

Argument Premature Says Tory

NANAIMO — No nuclear arms for Canada "is the correct answer" in the "terrible rift across Canada on this issue," former B.C. Progressive Conservative leader Dr. D. Finlayson told the Rotary Club here Friday.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker has clearly stated the issue should not have come up until after the North Atlantic meeting in May, when Canada's role would have been clearly defined," Mr. Finlayson said.

Record Budget

EDMONTON (CP) — A record spending program of $373,822,938, with more money for education, health and welfare and financed by increased revenues from a buoyant economy, was unfolded Friday night in the budget brought down by Alberta treasurer E. W. Hinman.

He estimated revenues, which included $116,988,500 from the mines and minerals department, will hit $373,847,650 and produce a "meagre but welcome surplus of $24,712."

HIGHER THAN B.C. — Alberta revenues will be the highest in Western Canada for the first time, surpassing British Columbia's budget of $372,700,000, Mr. Hinman said.

A year ago he budgeted for a surplus of $354,920,000. Despite an $8,888,000 drop in revenue from petroleum and natural gas lease sales, Mr. Hinman said greater

Saskatchewan Spending At New High

REGINA (CP) — A record budget calling for expenditures of $187,883,710, a deficit of $3,577,670 and new projects designed to stimulate industries and agriculture was presented Friday to the Saskatchewan legislature.

Provincial Treasurer J. M. Brockbank said the budget provides for "new horizons in the economic development of Saskatchewan," but a small deficit was planned because of prospects of a slowing down in the national economy.

The previous record budget included expenditures of $174,259,290 in the 1962-63 fiscal year.

Liberal Plan Aims At Have-Not Areas

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Liberal leader Pearson Friday night pledged to launch a national policy for expansion, aimed largely at have-not areas, if elected April 8 with a majority.

Speaking at a rally in this steel-making centre, the Liberal leader said nothing short of a national policy for the whole Atlantic region will begin to give the answers to the economic problems of the Atlantic provinces.

A national policy for expansion could not work for all Canada if some parts of the country are economically ailing.

would satisfy the people of B.C. and M.L.A.s.

A legislative committee, Mr. Perrault suggested, cannot be impartial because of its very nature.

Unless it brought completely unanimous findings, public doubts would not be allayed.

He was a member of the committee and he felt possible witnesses might "fear" to come before it.

Eight Scored

This was possible because it had such a preponderance of government members (eight Social Credit, four NDP and one Liberal).

"There must be no suspicion that the whitewash brush is going to be applied," said Mr. Perrault.

"In the light of all past experiences with investigations . . . painful experiences . . . one would have presumed the lesson had been learned" by the government, he added.

He said he was making a serious appeal to government members — members who had taken their legislative oaths to "put the public welfare first."

Interest First

"I appeal to government members to put the interest of the people before whether or not Social Credit wins the next election."

"I think the government's life is at stake over this inquiry," said Anthony Gargrave (NDP — Mackenzie). "I think an inquiry should be a judicial one and not a partisan one."

A legislative committee was not enough — "The terms of reference are much too limited — because I understand citizens elsewhere in the province are coming forward with material."

It also may be, he went on, Mr. Holworth may have "more and wider things to say."

First government speaker Education Minister Peterson, faced a barrage of opposition barbs.

He said reference to the accounts committee would be "the most expeditious" means of handling the matter.

"Nonsense," shot back Mr. Dowling.

Mr. Peterson suggested a royal commission might take "many months or many years" to deal with the matter and this was what the opposition wanted.

"Why are you scared of a judge?" asked Mr. Gargrave.

"My friends, I'm not afraid of a judge," replied Mr. Peterson.

Charges Hit

He attacked charges that committee members were not impartial enough to reach a fair judgment.

"If you say these members are not fit to judge you are saying they would subordinate principles and integrity for cheap political gain."

He said a royal commission would be more restricted than a House committee.

"Why don't you want a royal commission?" asked Mr. Gargrave.

Mr. Peterson charged the only delay in dealing with the allegations so far was that caused by the opposition's refusal to consent to the resolution last Tuesday.

"I think the minister doth protest too much," cracked Mr. Dowling.

The Burnaby member came in for his own share of heckling.

When he referred to charges made by Holworth, government benches rang with "what charges?"

"Get off that kick, there are no charges," shouted one Scored backbencher.

"The courts of this land are immune from attack," Mr. Dowling continued. "Their decisions are not questioned."

But if the allegations were handed to a legislative committee, "would that be true as far as the public mind is concerned?"

Mr. Dowling said the wisdom of handling such matters by a legislative committee "is contrary to every experience of this House and he knows it."

Pat McGree (L. Vancouver-Point Grey) said the weight of editorial opinion is against referring the case to a committee.

"Shouldn't the action we take be right in the public eye?"

Speaker Hugh Shantz stopped him from reading part of one newspaper editorial which referred to the committee as a "kangaroo court."

Randolph Harding (NDP — Kaslo-Slocan), a member of the public accounts committee, said: "I don't want to sit as a member of the committee which is going to have this thrown in their laps."

He said that, since the affidavits had been tabled, Mr. Gargrave had said the NDP was hitting below the belt and was smearing him.

What Kind?

"This is what were called by the minister. Then you talk about an impartial committee. I'm not going to be subjected to this kind of abuse."

"What kind do we have to stand?" shot back Mr. Bonner.

"If the highways minister has no confidence in me as a member of this House he has no confidence in me as a member of this committee," shouted Mr. Harding.

"Let's take this completely out of the realm of politics. Let us give it to a judge who can look at every aspect, every phase of these affidavits."

"Then nobody can accuse us of whitewashing or of the obstruction of the wheels of justice."

Acting Speaker

John Squire (NDP — Alberni) ran into continued objections from Acting Speaker William Murray.

He said not even government members have any respect for committee findings.

The acting speaker said he couldn't say that.

"Withdraw," shouted Herbert Bruch (SC — Esquimalt).

So Mr. Squire said he did not think committees were impartial and again he ran afoul of the chair.

"You are denying me proper debate in this House," he shouted.

Mr. Murray ruled the matter of impartiality was not under debate.

Opposition leader Robert Strachan said that was exactly what was being debated.

Squire Partial

"Well," said Mr. Squire, "I don't think I am impartial and I don't think the speaker can object to that. I'm partial."

Gordon Gibson (L. — North Vancouver) said he couldn't think of "anything more stupid" than referring the case to a committee.

"It can't be handled here intelligently. If a man got sick here and there was no doctor we wouldn't throw him to a committee."

James Rhodes (NDP — Delta) asked if the government would appoint an opposition member committee chairman.

Said Scored whip Bert Price: "I couldn't care less."

Didn't Answer

"But would support it?" Mr. Rhodes queried.

Mr. Price didn't answer.

Mr. Rhodes said that from "past experience I refuse to take the verbal position" of Premier Bennett that the committee would continue to sit until it had finished its job.

Mr. Bonner protested the statement was a "direct imputation" on the government and Mr. Rhodes knew it all ways backs up its words.

"Then put it in writing," Mr. Rhodes retorted.

Record Fatality Year

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fear that British Columbia may be heading for a record year in accidental deaths was voiced Thursday by a spokesman for the B.C. safety council.

The council issued statistics to show there were 111 fatalities during January. The toll of 1,138 persons dead in accidents during 1962 was the highest ever recorded.

Of the 111 dead last month,

43 died in motor vehicle accidents, the largest toll. Fifteen died in accidental falls and there were 13 accidental poisonings. The other fatalities were made up of persons dying by drowning and submersion, fire, explosion and firearm.

The traffic safety section of the council will survey its branches and member associations on whether they favor legislation making seat belts compulsory in cars.

A section meeting Thursday said it hoped to have the results within a month. There are 16 branches in B.C. and about 30 member associations.

CUT 20¢ A GALLON

Gasoline Prices Slashed by Volkswagen

VICTORIA (VW) — The current gasoline price war in the city has brought to light an interesting fact according to city automobile dealer Bruce Passmore of Speedway Motors Ltd.

Mr. Passmore points out that Volkswagen owners are paying approximately 20¢ per gallon for gasoline. To support his interesting contention the VW dealer asserts that domestic car owners are averaging 15 to 20 miles per gallon in normal driving, whereas Volkswagen owners obtain approximately double these figures with an average of 35 to 40 miles per gallon.

Therefore it works out that Volkswagen drivers obtain their fuel at the 20¢ figure in comparison to most car owners. As a final clincher to this theory Mr. Passmore adds the fact that for a VW owner, the price reduction is permanent and will remain long after the present gas price situation is settled, in fact, the VW owner will effect these savings and more, as long as he owns a Volkswagen.

LETTERS to the Editor

Do be considered for publication in whole or in part letters must be on subjects of general interest, not more than 200 words in length, and, if signed with a pen-name, must be accompanied by the writer's name and address.

It seems to me that the statements in the Colonist article headed "Pest poisons no peril, Canadian insists," are hardly compatible with the facts.

Ask any member of any Canadian fish and game branch. Or any orchardist, who while spraying, has to be completely clothed and hooded in an air and moisture proof suit, complete with hood and respirator, and also has to be sure his family and livestock are safely out of the danger zone. "No public health peril," indeed!

Dr. Hurlig's report regarding the concern over pesticides killing birds and wildlife — "There have been no major problems in Canada, at least in the agricultural field" — one that many people will find impossible to accept.

He is right in saying that the most serious area for concern is in the home garden, to which could be added the widespread spraying of forests across Canada which has resulted, in too many cases, in the wiping out of all wildlife in or near the areas sprayed.

The statements in Rachel Carson's book "Silent Spring" are fully documented. It should be remembered that all pesticides used in Canada are authorized and recommended by governmental departments. The responsibility is theirs.

Welfare State

In your issue of Feb. 26 your correspondent Clarence S. Goode writes about the British worker and his deterioration due to unions and the welfare state.

I would remind your correspondent that the power of the unions and the introduction of the welfare state in Britain was brought about directly by the exploitation of the manual worker by industry and the wealthy minority. I am not referring to the 19th century but to the years between the wars when the dockers had to go daily to the gates of the dock to see if he had a job that day, when the coal-miner worked at the coal face for three pounds per week, domestic servants worked from dawn to the late hours of the night for a pittance. This was the country "fit for heroes" promised by Lloyd George.

I could supply countless other cases of low wages and long hours. Surely it can come as no surprise that the post-war Britain was not prepared to return to such conditions and consequently the unions received great support and the welfare state was born.

A workman who slipped and fell 12 feet from scaffolding at Mayfair Shopping Centre was in satisfactory condition in St. Joseph's Hospital last night. Laine Construction employee Oscar Gomez, 32, of 428 Superior, suffered a broken arm and wrist.

Beatrice Revoy, 872 Wollaston, was given a 20-day jail sentence when she pleaded guilty in city magistrate's court yesterday to a charge of driving while impaired. A similar conviction in August, 1960, made the jail sentence mandatory.

Oak Bay realtor Don Whyte has been elected to his third term as president of the Oak Bay Board of Trade.

Lance Whitaker was chosen vice-president. Secretary-treasurer is W. H. Bumblecombe. Chosen directors were Ralph Boyle, Miss Ella-May Gaddes, Larry Wright, Ian Diment and John Weicker.

Loot totalling $115 in cash was taken from a purse hidden in a drawer at 2192 Quadra in one of three break-ins reported to police last night. Thieves entered the home of W. H. Williams through a side window. Police said the house was not ransacked.

Mrs. F. Bowles, 2518 Quadra, lost $5 in change from her badly-ransacked home. Thieves took advantage of an unlocked car door to remove $30 worth of mechanic's tools from a car parked at Bay Street Armory.

Situation In Hand

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — England, 120 runs behind with nine first-innings wickets left, appeared Friday to have the situation well in hand at the close of the first day of the second cricket test match against New Zealand.

At one point England seemed likely to overtake New Zealand as it did in the first test. After being put into bat, New Zealand lost its first six wickets for 71 but recovered to total 194. England made 71 for one by the close.

Fatal Accidents Climb

Accidental deaths in British Columbia in January totalled 11—11 more than recorded in January of last year.

The 1,158 fatal accidents recorded in 1962 was one of the highest tolls ever recorded, according to a statement by the provincial division of vital statistics.

Of the 111 deaths in January, 43 were caused by motor vehicle accidents, 15 caused by accidental falls and 13 from accidental poisonings.

For Firemen's Dispute

Council Asks Conciliator

Appointment of a conciliator officer was requested this week by city council following breakdown of contract negotiations with Victoria firemen.

Council was told at a closed session that spokesmen for the firemen's union refused to budge from the requested 6.6 per cent salary increase. The union demands, including a shorter work week requiring 15 additional men and revised holiday schedules, would cost more than $100,000, if granted in full.

Negotiations with city police have already gone to conciliation. This generally is regarded as the first step towards compulsory arbitration.

Request from the Greater Victoria Industrial research commission for the city to contribute its $2,395 shares of a $6,000 budget for 1963 was referred to finance committee. Ald. J. L. W. McLean said he wasn't convinced of the need for a program to bring light industry here and requested further study.

Council voted unanimously in favor of sending a letter of appreciation to Fire Chief James Bayliss who retires March 31 after 39 years' service to the city.

A $15,000 annual grant for five years starting in 1964 toward the Y.M.W.C.A. building fund was formally approved by council. It also agreed to pay $12,108 a year toward cost of a new nurses' home and laboratory for Royal Jubilee Hospital, but in this case decided to leave date of the first payment to the budget committee.

Victoria's Junior Shamrock, winners of the Minto Cup last season, will get green blazers and crests after all.

Council gave the finance committee authority to spend up to the $1,120 estimated cost of the gift to 28 members of the national junior lacrosse championship team. But it was told that local lacrosse authorities are willing to contribute $300 and Oak Bay has agreed to pay its share while Esquimalt is still making up its mind.

Wedding Today

Special Cake

A special cake was decorated Friday in the kitchen of the Salvation Army's Matson Lodge for the elderly — a wedding cake.

The cake will be cut this afternoon at a reception for Mr. and Mrs. Arthur John Coleman, residents at the lodge, after their wedding at 2:30 p.m.

FOR FIRST TIME

Brigadier Victor Underhill, supervisor of Matson Lodge, will perform the marriage ceremony at the Salvation Army's Citadel, 757 Pandora.

Mr. Coleman, 78, and his fiancee, 77-year-old Miss Nelly Carter, met for the first time in September as residents of the lodge.

Many of the 140 lodge residents are expected to attend the wedding and reception with the guests of honor seated at the head table.

Miss Carter has never married before but decided against wearing the traditional wedding gown. Instead, she will wear a silk suit she bought for the occasion.

"We have no plans for a honeymoon at present," she said last night. "We will think about that later."

"I am as calm as a cucumber—I am past getting excited, I think. I am very happy."

STONE MASON

Mr. Coleman is a retired stone mason who helped build Christ Church Cathedral and a famous landmark, the stone-walled house at 3119 Cook Street, now owned by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hemmings.

Miss Carter, born in New Zealand and brought to B.C. as a child, worked in Victoria and Vancouver as a nurse until her retirement.

Hippo-Like Caddy Aimed for Boat But Victoria Couple Got Away

Cadborosaurus—with a huge head and gaping maw like a full-grown hippo—surfaced about 10 feet from a small plywood rowboat near Gabriola Island recently.

"The head was a couple of feet above the water," Mrs. R. A. Stewart, 5308 Westholme Road, recalled last night. "I never saw any teeth or ears."

"It was coming right for the boat. I screamed and said, 'Get to the shore quickly.'"

Mrs. Stewart's husband was rowing and had his back turned but at his wife's scream he rowed quickly for the beach. Caddy disappeared.

Said Mrs. Stewart: "I only wish some responsible persons would go over to Gabriola Island

Bring Back Ferries!

Bring back the midnight ferries!

That was the plea of Opposition leader Robert Strachan Friday.

When CPR and Blackball ferries were in operation before the government came into the picture, he told Premier Bennett, it was possible to catch a midnight boat back to the island. Trains used to be able to play games on either side of the strait then return that night.

But island sport was suffering now because a same-day return wasn't possible.

Commercial

Plates Still Problem

By IAN STREET

Some owners of commercial vehicles still have not grasped the fact they must carry commercial plates issued by municipalities as well as provincial "C" registration.

Those without the municipal commercial plates introduced this year — passenger vehicles used for transport of goods as well as trucks are eligible — or special exempt plates were liable to prosecution, as of Friday.

PENALTY RANGE

The provincial act stipulates penalties ranging from $25 to $250 for infractions.

City licence inspector William Wallis said that, despite a rush of business on the days immediately preceding the Thursday deadline, more than 100 plates were issued at city hall yesterday.

It was apparent, however, some of the latecomers had not understood the commercial plates issued by municipalities differed from the provincial registration.

INTO SINGLE POT

Victoria received 4,000 municipal commercial plates and another 1,000 exempt plates. Every municipality in the province received a supply.

Charges of up to $25 for registration of commercial vehicles everywhere will go into a single pot and be redistributed among municipalities according to population.

OWN SUPPLY

Each municipality has its own supply of plates. To date Victoria has issued 2,800 plates — 450 of them in the exempt category which were free.

Chief Constable John Blackstock has ordered a crackdown on owners of commercial vehicles operating without the new plates.

In House Monday

The legislature returns to regular business Monday after a full day and a portion of another debating methods of investigating allegations of misuse of funds in the highways department.

Premier Bennett said as the House rose Friday that agriculture department estimates would be discussed starting at 2 p.m. Monday. Consideration of the attorney-general's estimates will follow.

1,000 Canvassers

Volunteers Drive for $79,000

More than 1,000 canvassers went into action Friday vowing to raise more than $79,000 in the annual fund drive of the Victoria and district branch of the Canadian Red Cross.

The $79,000 goal is the same as last year's, which was successfully reached. More than 900 canvassers are expected to raise more than half the sum in a house-to-house campaign.

Business and industrial groups, municipal offices and the armed forces also will be approached.

In a campaign-opening statement, Victoria Mayor R. B. Wilson appealed to residents of Victoria and the Victoria area to give as generously as possible to the campaign so the $79,000 goal can be reached.

He mentioned the Red Cross blood donor clinics and the Red Cross's "unfailing efforts in time of disaster."

In other statements, Lieutenant Governor Pearkes recalled that the international Red Cross has just completed its first 100 years of humanitarian service, and Premier Bennett said, "We who are in good health should be grateful for this tremendous bounty. At the same time we ought to consider the needs of the less fortunate."

Campaign literature issued by the Victoria branch said about 95 per cent of donations made in the Victoria and district campaign are actually used to benefit the citizens of this area.

Fifty-five per cent of money donated goes to blood donor clinics, which process and supply more than 6,000 pints of blood annually to Victoria-area hospitals.

The homemaker service, which provides emergency housekeeping in homes when the mother is ill, receives 7.5 per cent. Seven per cent goes to veterans services, including the Red Cross Lodge, arts and crafts teaching and hospital visiting.

The Junior Red Cross, training elementary and secondary school students in friendship, goodwill and assistance to needy children at home and abroad, receives 6.5 per cent. Other money goes to the Red Cross water safety service, the loan cupboard of sick room supplies, home nursing classes, disaster services, Red Cross House, welfare and sundry services, and campaign expenses.

Ninety-five per cent of Red Cross work is done by volunteers.

Maurice L. Fitzgerald is president of the Victoria and district branch. W. W. Lewis is campaign chairman and C. E. Rivett-Carnac is publicity chairman for the campaign.

Eight youths with an ambitious goal are hoping to march into Victoria today after a 50-mile hike along the coast from the north of Duncan starting point. They expect to be back in Victoria tomorrow evening.

A second group, Dan Park, 16, Terry Forsyth, 15, Len Philp, 15, and Hans Hansen, 15, left Victoria by car about 11:30 p.m. heading for the north of Duncan starting point. They expect to be back in Victoria tomorrow evening.

Up to 100 Laid Off Here

Service Station Men Idled by Price War

By JURGEN HESSE

An undisclosed number of service station attendants, anywhere from 25 to 100 or more, have been dismissed by operators as a direct result of financial strains brought about by Victoria's gasoline price war, the Colonist learned Friday.

Half a dozen operators said they either had to "lay off" one or two attendants or positively knew of stations which "let go" some of their personnel or cut down hours of operation in an effort to match losses incurred through reduced gross profit margin.

There are about 150 service stations in Greater Victoria.

Isherwood Spurs Unity Plea From Candidate

Dramatic rift in the ranks of the Liberal party's organization in Victoria which occurred late Thursday widened still further Friday as lawyer Foster Isherwood rejected an appeal for party unity from official candidate David Groos.

Mr. Isherwood, who announced in an emotion-charged statement to the Colonist Thursday night that he will oppose Mr. Groos as an independent Liberal, reaffirmed his decision Friday in a prepared statement.

And support for his stand came from Sid Smith, president of Ward 1, Victoria Liberal Association, who charged Mr. Groos was given the party nomination on a "phony" ballot which included three more votes than there were voting delegates.

Meanwhile, Victoria businessman W. C. Gelling pooh-poohed rumors that he will oppose the official Tory candidate, Eric Charman, as an independent Conservative candidate.

Mr. Isherwood, who polled some 14,000 votes in the last election, against incumbent Tory MP A. deB. McPhillips.

To Quit Party If Asked

Commenting on a suggestion that he would have to leave the Liberal party to stand as an independent candidate in the election, Mr. Isherwood said:

"If they want me to leave the Liberal party that is up to them."

"I am running as an independent. I am a Liberal and my history will say that I am a Liberal independent."

Mr. Smith, one of the scrutineers of the balloting at the Liberal convention Thursday night said bluntly that there were three more votes cast on the first ballot than there were delegates.

"The ballot did not give Mr. Groos a clear majority," he said. "Because of those three votes there should have been a recount with the second ballot."

"They claim Mr. Groos had a majority of nine votes on the first ballot but he didn't — he had a majority of one on a phony ballot."

"Mr. Groos said he was not going to run at all and then he said he was, and he said he was against nuclear weapons and then he said he was for them."

"If a man changes his mind

He will replace Capt. J. R. MacLean, of Brockville, Ont., also of the PPCLI, who will join the instructional staff at the Victoria headquarters in Vancouver.

Conservative Expresses Sympathy

Conservative candidate for Victoria riding, Eric Charman last night expressed sympathy for Liberal Foster Isherwood who lost his party's nomination Thursday night to David Groos.

"I have never heard of a first ballot being declared valid while they are already conducting a second," he said.

"It is obvious that Mr. Isherwood has taken on some pretty tall orders as far as campaigning in the past and now he has broken the ice as far as the Liberals are concerned it is a question of someone else hornin' in."

"I am just wondering where Mr. Groos will be running in the next election. Maybe he'll try Nanaimo."

Mr. Charman was referring to the fact that Mr. Groos unsuccessfully contested the last two elections as a Liberal candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich, against Tory MP George Chatterton.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Rigby, 3020 Balfour Avenue, will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary, Thursday, March 7. They were married in St. Matthias Church, Burley, Leeds, Yorkshire, England. ## Dr. Kelsey Gets Her Carpet

By DOROTHY HOWARTH

WASHINGTON (TNS)—A brand-name advertising slogan for carpets read, "president on the door rates a carpet on the floor."

"Well I've got my carpet," said Dr. Frances Oldham Kelsey.

Dr. Kelsey, born in Cobble Hill, Vancouver Island, is the newly-appointed director of Washington's investigational drug branch which kept the deforming drug thalidomide off U.S. markets.

She laughingly shifted her sensibly-shod feet on the new pastel green wall-to-wall broadloom as she told the carpet story.

DINGY

Her dingy office with an uncovered floor was always stressed in early stories about how she delayed the drug's American sale.

So her colleagues jokingly gave her a one-by-two-foot square of old muted-colored carpet "just big enough to put my feet on under my desk, and I thought it was lovely," she said.

When that story broke "a couple of little men with hammers put this new one down. I guess the authorities got tired of reading about my old office."

The luxurious new broadloom hardly suits the Food and Drug Department's rickety wartime frame building, or forthright Dr. Kelsey.

ATTRACTIVE

Something wholesome and homespun would have better fitted the now famous tall, suit-wearing woman with the wide ready smile, and warm attractive voice.

Dr. Kelsey's frank western manner has not changed since her tomboyish girlhood on a 300-acre Vancouver Island farm near Cobble Hill, B.C. Nor has it changed since she was a hard-driving country doctor in Vermillion (pop. 6,102), South Dakota.

She remembers her GP days on 24-hour duty, driving miles across the wind-swept prairie between small towns, "but I enjoyed every minute of it."

INTRODUCTION

General practice gave her the overworked doctor's introduction to new drugs.

"Five or 10 minutes conversation in your office with the drug salesman and no time at all to read the accompanying literature."

Then your patients demanding the new product probably because they've read about it in a magazine."

The busy doctor, Mrs. F. Ellis Kelsey at home, already had two daughters born during her University of Chicago Medical School days.

But being a mother, she believed no one had time to do with her later suspicion of new German-developed drug thalidomide.

"It was my training in good pharmacological procedure."

High Drama

Fur Coats

Sweep In

PARIS—The most magnificent fur styling of the century will emerge in the next few years.

Top Canadian fur designer, Seymour Shuchat, here to see the collections predicts that the drapes and folds of the soft wave currently hitting the couture will bring in an era of great sweeping coats.

"And this," he points out, "is where the high drama of fur has always been."

This flowing line, he claims, will give fur designers the freedom they need to give full play to the skins, displaying them for maximum effect.

"We have already demonstrated that we can interpret fashion as subtly, in many cases more subtly, in fur than in cloth. We have the techniques whereby we can control and handle fur beautifully. We did it with the skintail coats, women are going to be dazzled when they see these skills applied to these new full coats."

Admitting that most of his collection was ready before he left Canada, Seymour said: "I must confess I feel smug. I felt Paris had to be flowing and feminine again, played my hunch and I was right."

High in his praise of the Paris couture he urges every designer to go there. "Paris breathes the breath of fashion life. There is no more in spring city."

Last season he adapted Nina Ricci's style for his collection. This season he expects to bring back more models for translation. "I am negotiating with several Paris houses, but as nothing is confirmed yet I cannot reveal the names."

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers—Our daughter is 14 years old. She is dating a boy the same age. This kid is at our house almost every evening.

The thing I object to is this: These two can't keep their hands off one another. They are either holding hands, or one is lying with his head in the other one's lap, or they are both lying on the sofa watching TV. All summer long they ran around barefooted, and if they weren't holding hands they were holding feet.

My wife seems to think it is perfectly all right. I think it is revolting. If they act like this at 14 what will they be doing three years from now?

My daughter and my wife both read your column. Please give them an eyeful. Thank you. —OLD FASHIONED DAD.

Dear Dad: You bet it's revolting—and if I were you I'd revolt. Teenagers who don't have enough self-respect to keep their hands off each other should be told in blunt language—and it's the parents who should do the telling. It sounds as if these two kids have a one-track mind—and the traffic is pretty heavy.

Dear Ann Landers: You have mentioned in your column that parents should not allow their children to touch things when they visit in the homes of other people. Now I wish you'd print something about young children who feed pets when no one is looking.

My cousin and his wife called on us yesterday. They brought their two youngsters along. The six-year-old gave the cat several caramels and the poor thing got her teeth stuck together and it was terrible. The other youngster gave our puppy some potato salad and dill pickle. She got so sick we had to call the vet in the middle of the night.

Our canary died several months ago and now I recall that it was just about the time these people last visited us. Please tell folks to teach their children not to feed pets when they are guests. Thank you.—BIG VET BILLS.

Dear Big Bills: I'm also telling parents who take their children visiting to keep an eye on them. Youngsters should not be free to wander around in other people's homes and get into mischief.

Dear Ann Landers: We are up to our necks in debts. My husband likes to gamble and he lies to me constantly. He swears he has paid certain bills. Later I get letters from the stores and telephone calls from the credit managers.

Mufflers Too Hot

All That's Fashionable Not a Bargain

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—I fear fashion designers. I admire you for all your creativity but some of it is costing me money that I'm not getting my money's worth from.

What brings all this about is the fact I've been cleaning out a closet of clothes and thinking in terms of what will go on into the future.

Some of the contents I'm tempted to send back to you, because it's partly your fault they're just garments hanging there. Yes, partly mine, I'll admit, for falling for them.

I'd say take back your mink, as in the popular song, if I had one. But you can have back that sable-collared "walking suit" which I thought was a real bargain because it had gone through several markdowns in the dress shop.

The suit is too heavy for our occasional mild winter days and not heavy enough for the cold ones. And just try tucking a sable-collared suit beneath a coat.

Take back your sleeveless dresses for winter. I bought one in a handsome double-knit wool jersey. The boss took one look at bared arms on one of the more frigid days and commented, "My Lord, it makes me cold just to look at you!"

Is that the kind of reaction a dress should draw from a male?

Take back your muffled neckline treatment on suits. I bought a beauty in red wool when the muffler fad first hit, and swathed my neck with its matching scarf for about half an hour. Then off came jacket, out came scissors, off came the scarf—and I could breathe again. The muffler's been hanging since in the closet and I figure the only good I'll ever get out of it is as patch if the seat of the skirt gives way.

Take back those interlinings of poor quality, although my dressmaker will regret this move. She's been making a fortune off me, replacing linings on dresses and skirts that came to pieces after four or five cleanings.

Take back that allover beaded evening sheath I bought in a moment of extravagance. Or, tell me how to keep the beads from catching on everything and how you can sit for long comfortably on ridges of beading.

Take back those dress belts faced with a material which comes loose from the fabric after a few wearings. Also, tell me what to tell the cleaner when he argues that he can't handle belts with fabric outside, and inside of some material which won't take the cleaning fluid.

Take back that skirt I bought with a back slit for walking room, or, tell me how to keep the slit beneath from showing.

HER HEART BELONGS TO DADDY

Whenever Daddy's away from home, the very nicest moment in Debbie's whole day comes around 7:15 p.m. That's the time when Daddy always phones long distance - from Calgary, Winnipeg, Toronto or wherever he happens to be visiting.

Do you keep in touch with the family regularly when you're absent on business trips? It brings so much happiness and reassurance to hearts like Debbie's. And it costs so little.

After 6 p.m. each evening (and all day Sunday) long distance rates drop by about one quarter. Vancouver to Regina, for example, can cost as little as $1.65.

Why not call them tonight, when long distance rates are lower?

Garden Notes

Cartons Need Holes

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I had a note in the mail the other day from a lady who asked me if it would be a good idea to start some of her seeds indoors in cut-down milk cartons. A neighbor apparently used and recommended these containers as seed-starters, but my correspondent had some doubts as to whether or not the wax coating would be injurious to the plant roots.

Milk cartons, paper cups, and similar wax and plastic-coated containers are entirely satisfactory for starting individual plants indoors, but you must always remember to poke a few holes in the bottom first to allow excess water to drain out. Soggy soil is a very common cause of failure, both in starting seeds and in established houseplants, and while plants CAN be grown successfully in glazed pots and other containers without a drainage hole, it requires considerably more care in the watering to avoid rotting the roots.

I have used all kinds of paper cups, cartons, and other waterproofed containers for starting seeds indoors—those little ice cream and cottage cheese "tubs" are good too—but I always punch a few holes in the bottom with a nail or an ice pick first, and cover them with a good wad of paper handkerchief or toilet paper before putting in the soil. This paper wad acts as a filter, allowing the excess water to drain away but keeping the grains of soil from clogging the holes.

One minor disadvantage of using waxed containers as seed starters is the fact that you have to get the plant out of its "pot" when you set it out in the garden, for the waxed cardboard won't rot very readily in the soil. This means a certain amount of disturbance to the roots and some setback to the plant, for a few of the invisible root-hairs are always torn away even in the most careful transplanting.

There are ways and means of minimizing this damage, of course. One way is to slit the sides of the container with a razor blade and peel away the cardboard carefully before setting the root ball in the soil. For this operation, the dirt in the pot must be moist to exactly the right degree, for if it is too dry or sloppy wet, some of the soil will fall away while handling, damaging the delicate root hairs.

The trend today is toward seed starters which can be planted out in the garden—pots made of materials which will hold their shape and firmness while indoors, but which will rot away when buried in the ground. With such containers, no actual transplanting is done, so there is no loss of root hairs and no setback to the plant. Using these "consumable" plant pots, it is possible nowadays to give things like corn and gladioli a head start indoors—subjects which are volitionally resentful of any root disturbance.

Among the consumable seed starters in the garden shops there are Ferto-pots and Rooto-pots, both made from dried and compressed cow manure; Hartman pots, made in England from compressed absorbent fibres; and Jiffy pots from Norway, pressed from wood and peat fibre impregnated with fertilizers so as to feed the roots as it rots in the soil.

I understand that these Jiffy pots were developed by two young Norwegians during the war years and under the very noses of the Nazi occupation troops. Today millions of them are sold in every country of the world.

JOHN CROSBY's Law on Jokes:

The British Do It Better

PARIS. We're in the era of the political joke and some of them are getting pretty frayed. I came late to The First Family, a parody record on the Kennedys that has outdistanced My Fair Lady, Gumbo With the Wind and maybe even the Bible. At the task of being out of step with half of mankind, I must admit I find The First Family only intermittently amusing.

The history of joke material is the longer it stays around the more waspish the nature of the joke. Kennedy has been on the national and international scene only a couple of years and the jokes are still enormously gentle, almost affectionate. But just wait.

Over here we have de Gaulle and he's pretty funny, too. Says the humorist, "Once or twice a year, mon general tells the French people to vote, yes. That's a referendum. Once or twice a year he says no. That's a press conference."

Across the channel sits Harold Macmillan, who has been in office for years and he's the best joke of all. In fact, if the Kennedys want a preview of what the jokes are going to be like 12 years from now in the Year 14 of the Kennedy epoch (which would be Bobby Kennedy's second term) he should study the present content of the Macmillan joke.

You may set it down as one of Crosby's laws that the acid content of the political joke is to the power of the year in office.

After 12 years you can rarely put the jokes in print without the page bursting into flame. Macmillan gets roasted everywhere, especially in the pages of Private Eye, which describes itself as a fortnightly lampoon and makes up in savagery what it frequently lacks in wit.

I confidently predict Macmillan is going to be turned out of office, if for no other reason than that no one can make any more jokes about Harold Macmillan without serious lapses in taste.

At political humor, the British are better than we are. They're more precise because they really don't give a damn and because they have more history to fall back on.

Private Eye hates everyone, and no one worse than the British press whose throat it cuts with a malignity I find refreshing because it's not my throat. For instance, Private Eye on how The Guardian does an international think piece: "The Albanian People's Daily yesterday revealed that the British oat harvest had failed for the third year in succession. This is undoubtedly evidence that the rift between Moscow and Peking is now wider than ever before."

During the Vassall case, which revealed a lot about how disfluent some of the sensational British press was, it ran a little parody of the "real inside story."

"You see, I was the man who made the tribunal necessary in the first place. A few weeks ago I had been drinking at El Vino's with a colleague who shall be nameless—Charles Greville and he had been dining the night before with another colleague, William Hackley, who had invented a rumor that a certain member of the government who shall be nameless, but suffice it to say that it was the prime minister himself, had been thinking of defecting to Russia."

News 'Loner' Boycotted

Peace talks in the 84-day printers' strike resumed Friday and Mayor Robert Wagner said he would keep both hands at the bargaining table "as long as their physical endurance can stand it."

Union leaders disagreed about the effect the surprise move by the Post would have on the talks. Publishers said it was "unwise" and might prolong the strike by stiffening the union's position.

Mayor Robert Wagner called the talks a "last-ditch" effort to end the dispute. He said he would not let them "drift on and on."

Mrs. Dorothy Schiff, the Post publisher, Thursday resigned from the publishers' association to resume publication Monday under an agreement with strike leader Bertram Powers, president of the International Typographical Union local. Powers said he thought the

Post's move would "speed settlement of the strike."

Elmer Brown, International president of the ITU, said, however, he did not think the decision would make much difference.

Squirrels Saved

LONGVIEW, Wash. (AP)—A city council has agreed to construction of a four-inch-wide Nutty Narrows Bridge over the main street—to carry hungry squirrels from a park to a feeding station in an office building. Several squirrels were killed crossing the street and a contractor offered to build the bridge at no cost to the city.

Shoeshine for Russian 'Protocol Gone Mad'

LONDON (AP)—The sight of a British corporal polishing a Russian general's boots with the general still in them—has the British writhing.

It happened in Germany when a group of Soviet brass visited the British Rhine Army. A picture of the shoeshine hit British front pages Friday and the headlines were far from shining.

"This is military protocol gone mad," comments The Daily Sketch. "Europe," it adds, "is rocking with its biggest laugh since Mr. Macmillan stopped Princess Margaret going to Paris."

A similar beet came from Mrs. Arthur Bradley, wife of the 27-year-old corporal who did the shoeshine.

"I'm furious," she said. "Arthur is not the boot-licking type."

"This is an insult not only to my husband but to the entire British Army."

Mrs. Bradley said her husband, a member of the Royal Horse Guards, stands six feet, three inches and weighs 224 pounds.

"It's a safe bet he was grinding his teeth as he squatted down at the Russian's feet," she said.

The man who got the shoeshine was Lt. Gen. I. I. Pstogov, commander of the Soviet Air Force in the east zone.

The war office said Pstogov was a British officer getting play of 60 specimens. Other a shine from the corporal and asked if he could have one, too.

"It was quite a normal courtesy to a visiting officer," the spokesman said.

By Provincial Museum

Rare Owl Acquired

In a five-for-one stuffed bird swap, the provincial museum has acquired a specimen of a rare little owl hardly ever seen in Canada.

A 6½-inch stuffed flammulated screech owl now can be seen mounted along with the museum's other owls. It completes the museum's collection of B.C. owls, museum curator

Dr. Clifford Carl said last night.

No other public museum in Canada has one and there are none in captivity in North America.

R. N. Atkinson, curator of the Penitentiary Museum, offered the bird to the provincial museum after it was found by a falconer, George W. Marshall.

The provincial museum has other samples of these species.

Dr. Carl said the bird—otus flammeus—is the only owl in B.C. with brown eyes. Other B.C. owls have yellow eyes.

The flammulated screech owl has only been recorded in Canada twice before—in 1902 and 1935. But Dr. Carl said many people may at other times have mistaken flammulated screech owls for commoner kinds.

Cultivated Plant Display Captures First Prize

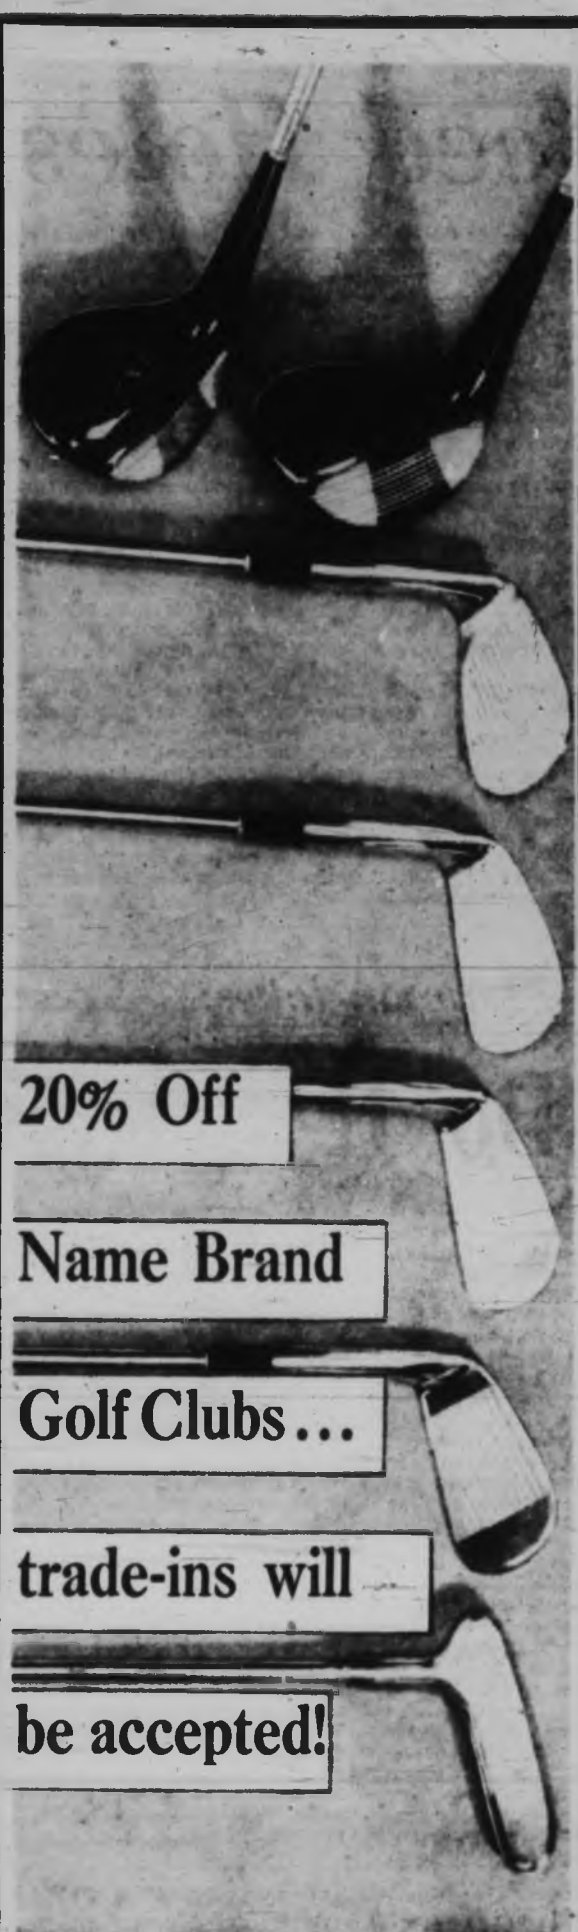

Display of 60 cultivated plants won first prize for Mrs. Olive Mason, 187 Swinford, during a recent horticultural show held at the Coachman's Inn by the Icebreakers Club of Victoria.

From the more than 100 species entered in the contest, Mrs. Mason won with her display of 60 specimens. Other Judges in the contest were Prof. L. Clark of the Thetis Park Nature Sanctuary, Hilda Beasly, garden columnist, Mrs. Elna McCabe of the horticultural society and Fireman King of the Natural History Society.

Paris Has Jitters

PARIS (Reuters)—Security men stepped up their campaign against right-wing terrorism Friday and a false bomb threat emptied the military courtroom where nine persons are nearing the end of their trial for the attempted assassination of President de Gaulle.

ALL-OUT EFFORT

The de Gaulle government was pushing an all-out offensive against the remnants of the outlawed right-wing "frontal resistance council," headed by ex-premier Georges Bidault, a de Gaulle foe.

GUARDS STRENGTHENED

Security precautions were tight around the military court in suburban Vincennes, where the verdicts were expected this weekend—and guards were strengthened at key spots elsewhere after disclosure of an alleged plot to kill Premier Georges Pompidou and Interior Minister Roger Frey.

EVACUATE COURT

Friday afternoon the Vincennes court was evacuated hurriedly after an anonymous telephone caller said a bomb would go off there in 15 minutes. Searching policemen found nothing in the courtroom.

He Beat City Hall But Lost to Flames

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—William Mathias Koelsch, 78, who fought city hall which condemned his mansion as a fire hazard, burned to death in it Friday.

Also presumably destroyed were what neighbors termed "tides of unopened dividend checks." The house burned within minutes. Only the chimney was left standing.

Mrs. Ann Albright, a neighbor, said "I fed him all the time, but I know he must be rich. There were stacks of unopened dividend checks on the floor, and he carried bundles of money in his pockets, dirty old money."

The refuse refused to comply with a court order to remove part of the structure, so city prison farm inmates demolished the section.

The court ordered him to repair the remainder. He refused.

In 1958 the house again was condemned. Koelsch pleaded with the city council for time to repair "my only home."

'Giant Jobless City' Spread Over Nation

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—is a hidden city hidden behind a curtain of cold statistics and spread right across Canada has a "city of unemployment."

Mr. Douglas said January unemployment averaged 541,000. Counting an average 1 1/2 dependents each, this represented 1,350,000 Canadians living on unemployment insurance, relief or both.

"It is a catastrophe of this magnitude was concentrated in one part of Canada, the city or region would be declared a disaster area," he said in an election speech.

"But this city of unemployed employees."

Police-Killer 'Santa' Bandit To Hang

MONTREAL (CP)—Georges Marcotte was convicted early today as the Santa Claus murderer of two policemen during a bank robbery Dec. 14 and was sentenced to be hanged May 31.

The 12-man jury deliberated 15 minutes on Mr. Justice Roger Ouellet's request for an opinion as to whether they recommended mercy and the jury foreman said the jury had no recommendation to make.

TAKEN CALMLY

Marcotte, 33, took the verdict calmly. When asked whether he had anything to say before passing of sentence, he said in French: "Je maintiens mon innocence" ("I maintain I am innocent").

Marcotte's voice was firm throughout the tense proceedings in a packed but silent courtroom. He worked his jaw and heavy lips almost continuously but displayed no other signs of emotion.

CONGRATULATES JURY

Mr. Justice Ouellet said the verdict was "absolutely founded on the evidence" and congratulated the 12-man jury for their "sense of justice."

The jury returned its verdict at 12:33 a.m. after retiring at about 10:40 p.m. Friday.

Mr. Justice Roger Ouellet asked the jury if it wished to recommend mercy and the jury immediately went into further deliberation on this point.

GUNSHOT SLAYING

Marcotte was found guilty of the gunshot slaying of Const. Claude Marneau.

Marneau and Const. Denis Brabant were killed beside their ambulance-cruiser as they answered a bank holdup alarm.

Jean-Paul Fournel and Jules Reeves are also charged with capital murder in the case as the men who, with Marcotte, got away with $142,200 in cash, bonds and securities.

TRIAL LATER

Fournel and Reeves are to face trial later this month. Fournel testified during Marcotte's trial that Marcotte was the man who wore a Santa Claus suit as a disguise in the holdup.

Mrs. Gresty May Testify

Gordon Dowding Friday in which had contained allegations of misuse of highway funds.

He said in a statement: "I hope that Mrs. Gresty will appear before the inquiry. I have been informed by Mr. Holworth's attorney that he will appear."

FAIR HEARING

"Since these are affidavits under oath the persons concerned must bear the burden of their authenticity or otherwise. It would be improper for me to judge the matter without a fair hearing being afforded all witnesses and if Mrs. Dowding said she had Mrs. Gresty wishes to swear affidavits I would be glad to Gresty. He had tabled an affidavit of Dick Holworth, president of Union Contractors, to do so."

REPEAT OUTSIDE

Mrs. Gresty, of Kamloops, Thursday invited Mr. Dowding to repeat outside the legislature. She was paid for me to judge the matter without a fair hearing being afforded all witnesses and if Mrs. Dowding said she had Mrs. Gresty wishes to swear affidavits I would be glad to Gresty. He had tabled an affidavit of Dick Holworth, president of Union Contractors, to do so."

He said the first witnesses will be officials of the highways department. The investigation would be as broad as possible but he did not think allegations concerning other projects would be admissible.

The debate, which started Thursday afternoon and continued yesterday until 5:30 p.m., was the stormiest since the session began Jan. 24.

Liberals and NDP members presented a solid front against referring the charges to a legislative committee. The NDP amended the government's motion Thursday and called for a royal commission.

$2,000,000 a Minute

Two million dollars a minute was the pace of legislative spending late Friday.

After battling more than four hours on allegations of misuse of funds in highways department operations, the legislature finally returned to normal business of considering spending estimates.

Twenty-two minutes later, the House rose for the weekend after authorizing the spending of $44,600,000 by Premier Bennett's finance department.

Increased homeowner grants, now up to $70, and grants to municipalities went unchallenged.

"Shall vote 122 yeas," and the answer "Yeas" meant $31,600,000 had been authorized for the purpose.

Pakistan Bans Demonstrations

KARACHI, Pakistan (Reuters)—City officials Friday issued a two-month ban on and gatherings of more than five persons after police opened fire on 7,000 striking mill workers in the industrial area of Karachi.

Official sources said four persons were killed and six injured in the shooting but unofficial sources placed the death toll at seven.

City officials said the workers began stoning a mill where workers were not on strike and tried to force their way into it. Police first retaliated with clubs and then fired tear-gas bombs.

When the crowd became violent, they opened fire with guns, the sources said.

ROADS FACE HOUSE PROBE

By TERRY HAMMOND and DON MATHESON

Social Credit's legislative majority yesterday passed to a legislative committee the job of probing allegations of misuse of funds in the highways department.

A 26-18 vote on a government resolution cut off opposition demands for a royal commission consisting of a B.C. Supreme Court judge after two days of bitter debate.

But this was not before opposition members promised more affidavits would join those of Montana contractor Dick Holworth.

Holworth has charged a Trans-Canada Highway contractor was paid $135,000 for work which was never done. Highways Minister Gagliardi offered to reward another company if it paid a friend's $6,702 debt and his church organist got $350 a month from the first firm.

The minister has denied the allegations.

The committee will air them at its next meeting Wednesday.

Only One Project

Public accounts chairman to be fresh affidavits in the Irvine Corbett (SC) case were delivered to NDP and Liberal leaders in the legislature yesterday. Copies went to Attorney-General Bonner.

But contents of the brown manila envelopes flown here by special plane from Vancouver were never tabled.

Mr. Bonner said outside the House he had referred them to officials of his department.

The resolution passed yesterday requires "that the material tabled Feb. 26 in the legislature by the second member for Burnaby, allegedly relating to Department of Highways Contract 819, be referred to the select standing committee on public accounts and printing."

Opposition members opposed the move because they claimed the previous performance of legislative committees under similar conditions had been unsatisfactory.

TV Words Rapped

Liberal leader Ray Perrault started the afternoon debate and charged the highways minister with "contempt of the legislature of the worst possible kind."

It was contempt, he said, to have the minister of highways appearing on television to discuss allegations of "graft" in department operations while the House was deciding how to handle the matter.

"The need for a royal commission is never more apparent than in the actions of the minister of highways in the last 24 hours," Mr. Perrault said.

Mr. Gagliardi is "more interested in defending himself on television and radio than he is before a royal commission," the Liberal charged.

The manner in which the appearance had been handled was an "insult to this legislature."

"Listen to these words," Mr. Perrault demanded. "Last night there was a radio spot saturation campaign on stations in the lower mainland."

These words, he said, were the message in the "spots." "The following is a paid political announcement by the Social Credit party. Watch CBC Television News on Channel Two at 6:15 tonight, when Highways Minister Gagliardi will answer smear charges of graft. That is Television News, Channel Two, at 6:15 tonight."

Most anywhere...," he started, but was ruled out of order.

He then commented "it may be found the allegations are completely unfounded and, if this is so, it will be good for B.C. to restore confidence in this government."

"And if they're true, they might support a criminal action," he added.

It was commendable that the government wanted a fast disposal of the matters but, on the basis of the government's "past experience," he felt, it should want a "free, open and public hearing of the charges."

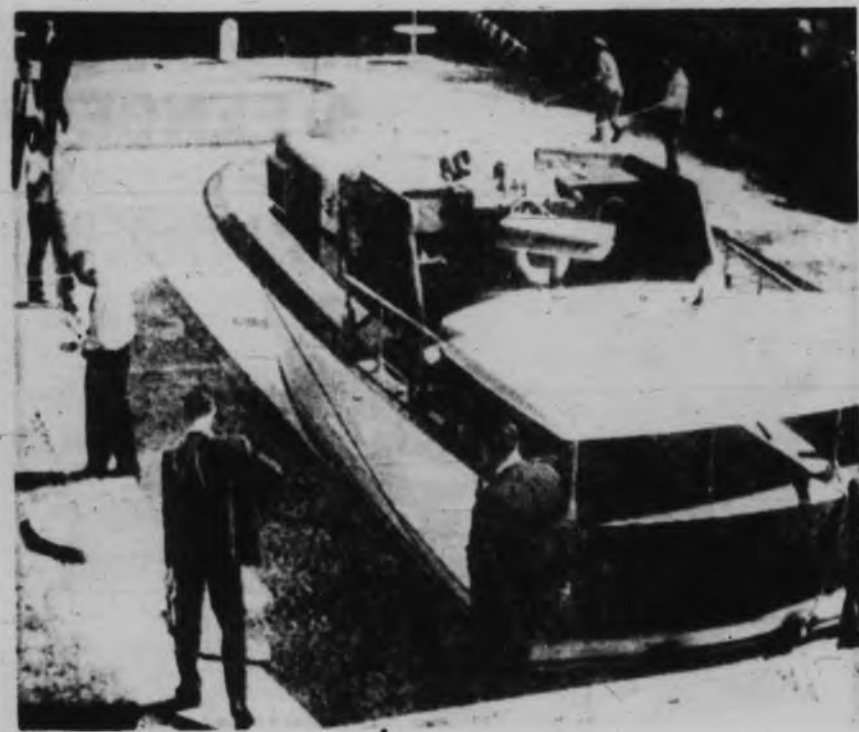

Past events were "engraved on the memory of the people of B.C. and the members of this House," he said.

The minister and "those accused" should be among the first to urge an open and judicial inquiry, Mr. Perrault said.

If all were found blameless, then it would be a "triumph for this government—a triumph they don't appear to be seeking."

Nothing less than inquiry by "judicial authorities whose attitude is above suspicion"

Bring Back Ferries!

Bring back the midnight ferries!

That was the plea of Opposition leader Robert Strachan Friday.

When CPR and Blackball ferries were in operation before the government came into the picture, he told Premier Bennett, it was possible to catch a midnight boat back to the island. Teams used to be able to play games on either side of the strait then return that night.

But island sport was suffering now because a same-day return wasn't possible.

Commercial

Plates Still Problem

By IAN STREET

Some owners of commercial vehicles still have not grasped the fact they must carry commercial plates issued by municipalities as well as provincial "C" registration.

Those without the municipal commercial plates introduced this year — passenger vehicles used for transport of goods as well as trucks are eligible — or special exempt plates were liable to prosecution, as of Friday.

PENALTY RANGE

The provincial act stipulates penalties ranging from $25 to $250 for infractions.

City licence inspector William Wallis said that, despite a rush of business on the days immediately preceding the Thursday deadline, more than 100 plates were issued at city hall yesterday.

It was apparent, however, some of the latecomers had not understood the commercial plates issued by municipalities differed from the provincial registration.

INTO SINGLE POT

Victoria received 4,000 municipal commercial plates and another 1,000 exempt plates. Every municipality in the province received a supply.

Charges of up to $25 for registration of commercial vehicles everywhere will go into a single pot and be redistributed among municipalities according to population.

OWN SUPPLY

Each municipality has its own supply of plates. To date Victoria has issued 2,800 plates — 150 of them in the exempt category which were free.

Chief Constable John Blackstock has ordered a crackdown on owners of commercial vehicles operating without the new plates.

In House Monday

The legislature returns to regular business Monday after a full day and a portion of another debating methods of investigating allegations of misuse of funds in the highways department.

Premier Bennett said at the House rose Friday that agriculture department estimates would be discussed starting at 2 p.m. Monday. Consideration of the attorney-general's estimates will follow.

1,000 Canvassers

Volunteers Drive for $79,000

More than 1,000 canvassers went into action Friday vowing to raise more than $79,000 in the annual fund drive of the Victoria and district branch of the Canadian Red Cross.

The $79,000 goal is the same as last year's, which was successfully reached. More than 900 canvassers are expected to raise more than half the sum in a house-to-house campaign.

Business and industrial groups, municipal offices and the armed forces also will be approached.

In a campaign-opening statement, Victoria Mayor R. B. Wilson appealed to residents of Victoria and the Victoria area to give as generously as possible to the campaign so the $79,000 goal can be reached.

He mentioned the Red Cross blood donor clinics and the Red Cross's "untiring efforts in time of disaster."

In other statements, Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes recalled that the international Red Cross has just completed its first 100 years of humanitarian service, and Premier Bennett said, "We who are in good health should be grateful for this tremendous bounty. At the same time we ought to consider the needs of the less fortunate."

Campaign literature, issued by the Victoria branch said about 95 per cent of donations made in the Victoria and district campaign are actually used to benefit the citizens of this area.

Fifty-five per cent of money donated goes to blood donor clinics, which process and supply more than 6,000 pints of blood annually to Victoria-area hospitals.

The home-maker service, which provides emergency housekeeping in homes when the mother is ill, receives 7.5 per cent. Seven per cent goes to veterans services, including the Red Cross Lodge, arts and crafts teaching and hospital visiting.

The Junior Red Cross, training elementary and secondary school students in friendship, goodwill and assistance to needy children at home and abroad, receives 6.5 per cent. Other money goes to the Red Cross water safety service, the loan cupboard of sick room supplies, home nursing classes, disaster services, Red Cross House, welfare and sundry services, and campaign expenses.

Ninety-five per cent of Red Cross work is done by volunteers.

Maurice L. Fitzgerald is president of the Victoria and district branch. W. W. Lewis is campaign chairman and C. E. Rivett-Carnac is publicity chairman for the campaign.

Centuries On Show

Inspecting 18th-century Coromandel screen from China Dynasty at last night's opening of exhibition of 3,000 Years of Chinese Art at Greater Victoria Art Gallery is Mrs. R. L. V. Jernin, who wears authentic Chinese princess coat. Exhibition will be on display at gallery until March 30.

New Plea Gets Same Answer

Duncan apparently has to wait still longer to find out when it will get a new courthouse.

Opposition leader Robert Strachan, who said he has been asking for seven years now, asked about it again in the legislature Friday.

All that time, he told Premier Bennett, he has been asking Works Minister Chant when it would be built.

FINANCE MINISTER

Now, he said, he decided to ask the premier, as minister of finance.

"Is the works department going to get the money" to build it? he asked.

"I want to assure you," Premier Bennett said, "that when the plans are ready, he will get the money."

SEVEN YEARS

Retorted Mr. Strachan: "The plans have been ready for seven years."

He explained that many years ago the premier had heard Mr. Chant say the plans "will be off the drawing boards in two months." But the new courthouse still hadn't been started.

No Place Like Home

NANAIMO — Adventure called two 15-year-old Vancouver brothers. They left home and school to seek work as loggers in Parksville.

After spending the night at a local hotel, the boys were picked up by local police and sent home Friday.

The boys said they would repay their mother for boat fares and have promised to continue their studies. But in another two years they anticipate starting their foiled logging career.

Light Industry Discussion Chamber Goal

DUNCAN — Guest speaker at Thursday night's general meeting of the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce was A. E. Walters of Victoria, director of the B.C. Chamber of Commerce and immediate past president of the Victoria Chamber.

His topic included aims and purposes of chambers and general chamber matters. Members were notified this year's Chamber of Commerce Week will be held from April 21 to 27.

ATTEND MEETING

Chamber secretary Art Stevenson was asked to write a letter to the superintendent of Indian Affairs Ronald Sampson, requesting the opportunity to attend the next meeting of the Cowichan Indian band council to discuss the recent negotiations between Duncan, the band council and the local Indian department on proposed plans for a light industry development south of Duncan.

A four-man committee has been appointed to attend, if permission is granted, consisting of president Ed Good, Will Dobson, Bert Kyle and Bert Doid.

BROCHURE AGAIN

President Good announced an order for 20,000 reissues of brochures entitled Duncan and the Cowichan Valley is being printed to be distributed throughout North America and elsewhere.

He pointed out 12,000 brochures were distributed last year and, due to the efforts of Coun. G. R. Sutherland, increased advertising had been obtained enabling the chamber to reissue 20,000 brochures.

Two applications for membership were approved. The new members are Hudson's Hardware Ltd., represented by James Jardine, and Neon Products of Canada Ltd., represented by Bill Keschich Jr.

Tempers Set Aflame Over Hospital Move

Barnett for Diefenbaker If It's Him or Pearson

CAMPBELL RIVER — T. S. Barnett, NDP member in the last parliament, said here recently he was "not an admirer of (Prime Minister) Diefenbaker but, if I had to make a choice between him and (Liberal leader) Pearson, I would come down on the side of Diefenbaker."

He said Mr. Diefenbaker missed a golden opportunity when he delayed calling Parliament.

The "Conservatives were numb with the results of the election," he added.

The Liberals were "frustrated and unhappy and vented their spleen on Parliament at every chance (in order) to throw out the government with non-confidence motions," Mr. Barnett said.

He predicted no great change in the April 8 election and said "the three Prairie provinces would re-elect the Conservatives 'who have done more for the farmers in their short term of office than the Liberals did at any time.'"

The NDP policy, Mr. Barnett said, was still against nuclear arms.

"Canada cannot compete in nuclear warfare — only the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. — and if they make use of this weapon there is nothing we can do."

T. S. BARNETT

... no admirer

NANAIMO — Tempers flared here when lawyer Ralph Hutchinson proposed to the annual meeting of Nanaimo Regional Hospital Board that nurses have a representative on the board — not necessarily a nurse.

Board chairman Colin Cameron had to bang his gavel for order several times before a vote saw the plan defeated.

Board president Russell Inkster said of resolution: "Efficiency would go down the drain. I'll buck it. I'll oppose it. It is just impractical. It will break the chain of leadership which now is working to perfection."

ALSO, ENGINEERS

"What crazy idea is this?" asked Matthew Scurr, another board member. "If the nurses come in, then I'll immediately vote in the engineers and all the other different workers."

Later in the meeting, administrator Gordon Frith paid tribute to the staff and said: "We have a most harmonious relationship... I'm very proud of them."

DOCTORS PLEASED

Medical staff president Dr. E. C. Welch said doctors were pleased with the new hospital. He said a new spirit pervades the hospital, which "has a great future," and there will be "a real advance in medical achievement."

Mr. Inkster's annual report said more thought is needed before the fate of the old hospital can be decided.

Original plan was conversion into a nursing home for convalescents and chronic cases, but B.C. will provide only one-third of this cost and Ottawa will not give anything.

Probers Set Dates

NANAIMO — The royal commission on pilotage problems will sit in Prince Rupert March 18 and in New Westminster March 25, it was announced here Friday.

During the intervening week, commission members will tour Vancouver Island for discussions with harbor authorities.

A major topic at the hearing in New Westminster is expected to be the refusal of Fraser River pilots to take "bridge off" ships through the Great Northern Railway bridge in the city.

Second Boat Added for Pilots To Join Ships at Cape Beale

PORT ALBERNI — Increased activity in the harbor here has resulted in the addition of a second vessel for transportation of pilots to pick up freighters at Cape Beale.

The R. E. Riley II, a 40-foot craft, was delivered this week to Riley Boat Service which has been providing pilot service here for the past 16 years.

The vessel, with a cedar plank hull and an 11½-foot beam, powered by a diesel motor, was rebuilt from the hull up in Victoria by Hjalmer Wiigen of Tofino.

MORE SPACE

The craft, three feet longer than the R. E. Riley I — which will continue in the service — also provides more galley and cabin space.

Accommodation includes two berths for pilots who often catch up on their sleep during the run to the entrance of Barclay Sound.

The new vessel has undergone the official steamboat inspection and has met requirements for transportation of passengers.

Captains Douglas Riley and Douglas Collis are in charge of the two-boat pilot fleet, in a service started by the former's father, Reece Riley, a well-known west coast figure who lost his life off Flores Island in November, 1950.

The R. E. Riley II has a

Wharf Work Starting

PORT ALBERNI — Work will start next week on an expansion project at B.C. Packers Ltd. premises on the waterfront.

An extension of the dock has been completed. Construction will provide a 20-by-80-foot net storage loft and facilities for storage of 60 tons of ice. A new ice machine with a capacity of 20 tons daily will be installed.

The project followed the closure of the Kildonan plant which had operated since 1911.

Pete Gregory, manager of the B.C. Packers' Port Alberni branch, said that, during the peak of the fishing season, there will be six or seven men employed at the enlarged plant. B.C. Packers recently installed a new plant at Ucluelet.

Paris Has Jitters

PARIS (Reuters) Security men stepped up their campaign against right-wing terrorism Friday and a false bomb threat emptied the military courtroom where nine persons are nearing the end of their trial for the attempted assassination of President de Gaulle.

Paris rocked with reports of assassination plots and a plan for the escape of the trial defendants.

ALL-OUT EFFORT

The de Gaulle government was pushing an all-out offensive against the remnants of the outlawed right-wing "national resistance council."

Security precautions were tight around the military court in suburban Vincennes where the verdicts were expected this weekend—and guards were strengthened at key spots elsewhere after disclosure of an alleged plot to kill Premier Georges Pompidou and Interior Minister Roger Frey.

Tiny Atomic Nucleus

Enormous Power Invades Earth

WASHINGTON (AP) A tiny super-powered invader from distant space penetrated our solar system last month and crashed into the earth's atmosphere, setting off a cosmic ray shower over New Mexico.

The invader was a mere nucleus of an atom, but physicists say its energy was so great it must have come from some distant galaxy, outside our own Milky Way.

The event is reported in the current issue of Physical Review Letters by John Linsley of the Laboratory for Nuclear Science, Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Linsley detected the shower at the volcano recording station of its enormous power.

When it crashed into the earth's air blanket, it struck the nucleus of an atom of the air—earth's atmosphere must have come from a much more active grew by a sort of chain reaction into a shower of high-speed atomic particles.

The cosmic ray shower covered an area of several square miles. The bombardment lasted only an instant.

Twenty-two minutes later, the House rose for the weekend after authorizing the spending of $44,600,000 by Premier Bennett's finance department.

Increased home owner grants—now up to $70—and grants to municipalities went unchallenged.

Police-Killer

'Santa' Bandit To Hang

MONTREAL (CP) — Georges Marcotte was convicted early today as the Santa Claus murderer of two policemen during a bank robbery Dec. 14 and was sentenced to be hanged May 31.

The 12-man jury deliberated 15 minutes on Mr. Justice Roger Ouellet's request for an opinion as to whether they recommended mercy and the jury foreman said the jury had no recommendation to make.

TAKEN CALMLY

Marcotte, 33, took the verdict calmly. When asked whether he had anything to say before passing of sentence, he said in French: "Je maintiens mon innocence" ("I maintain I am innocent").

Marcotte's voice was firm throughout the tense proceedings in a packed but silent courtroom. He worked his jaws and heavy lips almost continuously but displayed no other signs of emotion.

CONGRATULATES JURY

Mr. Justice Ouellet said the verdict was "absolutely founded on the evidence" and congratulated the 12-man jury for their "sense of justice."

The jury returned its verdict at 12:33 a.m. after retiring at about 10:40 p.m. Friday.

Mr. Justice Roger Ouellet asked the jury if it wished to recommend mercy and the jury immediately went into further deliberation on this point.

Marcotte was found guilty of the gunshot slaying of Const. Claude Marneau and Const. Denis Brabant were killed beside their ambulance-cruiser as they answered a bank holdup alarm.

KAMLOOPS (CP) — An Louis church said he deplored emotional Highway Minister the fact his church was continuing to be used by others with loops constituents in an off-the-top political life.

"I don't know of any individual that has been submitted to the abuse I have," Mr. Gagliardi said. "By the grace of God I've always tried to uphold my oath of office."

"People have said that if they can get Mr. Gagliardi they can get the government," he said. "I've always been a fighter and will continue to do so."

Mrs. Gresty to Testify But Lawyer Adds 'If'

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The lawyer representing Mrs. Florence Gresty said Friday his client would be happy to appear before an inquiry provided the inquiry is conducted "in a proper manner," in the case of allegations of misuse of road funds.

Gordon Dowding, New Democratic member of the legislature for Burnaby, earlier invited Mrs. Gresty to make the appearance and also to present affidavits he said would be forwarded "to the proper tribunal."

MLAs' Spending Pace:

$2,000,000 a Minute

Two million dollars a minute was the pace of legislative spending late Friday.

After battling more than four hours on allegations of misuse of funds in highways department operations, the legislature finally returned to normal business of considering spending estimates.

Also passed without comment was the civil service pay raise of $2,500,000.

But Opposition leader Robert Strachan did rise to make "my annual comment"—on a subsidy of $1,800,000 for the toll authority to meet sinking fund payments.

He said this was again taking tax money to help a contingent liability supposedly self-liquidating.

"This is part of the debt of this province," he said.

Pakistan Bans Demonstrations

KARACHI, Pakistan (Reuters) — City officials Friday issued a two-month ban on demonstrations, processions and gatherings of more than five persons after police opened fire on 7,000 striking mill workers in the industrial area of Karachi.

Official sources said four persons were killed and six injured in the shooting but unofficial sources placed the death toll at seven.

City officials said the workers began stoning a mill where workers were not on strike and tried to force their way into it. Police first retaliated with clubs and then fired tear-gas bombs.

When the crowd became violent, they opened fire with guns, the sources said.

Crash Kills 61

GUATEMALA (AP) — An overcrowded bus speeding to a fair turned over and burned Thursday, killing 61 persons including 16 children, police said. The driver, who was seriously hurt, was accused of drunken driving and speeding.

By TERRY HAMMOND and DON MATHESON

Social Credit's legislative majority yesterday passed to a legislative committee the job of probing allegations of misuse of funds in the highways department.

A 26-18 vote on a government resolution cut off opposition demands for a royal commission consisting of a B.C. Supreme Court judge after two days of bitter debate.

But this was not before opposition members promised more affidavits would join those of Montana contractor Dick Holzworth.

Holzworth has charged a Trans-Canada Highway contractor was paid $135,000 for work which was never done. Highways Minister Gagliardi offered to reward another company if it paid a friend's $6,702 debt and his church organizer got $350 a month from the first firm.

The minister has denied the allegations.

The committee will air them at its next meeting Wednesday.

Only One Project

Public accounts chairman to be fresh affidavits in the case were delivered to NDP after the sitting the first meeting and Liberal leaders in the legislature yesterday. Copies went to Attorney General Bonner, morning.

He said the first witnesses will be officials of the highways department. The investigation would be as broad as possible but he did not think allegations concerning other projects would be admissible.

The debate, which started Thursday afternoon and continued yesterday until 5:30 p.m., was the stormiest since the session began Jan. 24.

Liberal and NDP members presented a solid front against referring the charges to a legislative committee. The NDP amended the government's motion Thursday and called for a royal commission. Documents which were said satisfactory.

TV Words Rapped

Liberal leader Ray Perrault started the afternoon debate and charged the highways minister with "contempt of the legislature of the worst possible kind."

It was contempt, he said, to have the minister of highways appearing on television to discuss allegations of "graft" in department operations while the House was deciding how to handle the matter.

"The need for a royal commission is never more apparent than in the actions of the minister of highways in the last 24 hours," Mr. Perrault said.

Mr. Gagliardi is "more interested in defending himself on television and radio than he is before a royal commission," the Liberal charged.

The manner in which the appearance had been handled was an "insult to this legislature."

"Listen to these words," Mr. Perrault demanded.

"Last night there was a radio spot saturation campaign on stations in the lower mainland."

"These words," he said, were the message in the "spots."

"The following is a paid political announcement by the Social Credit party. Watch CBC Television News on Channel Two at 6:45 tonight, when Highways Minister Gagliardi will answer smear charges of graft. That is Television News, Channel Two, at 6:45 tonight."

"And if they're true, they might support a criminal action," he added.

It was commendable that the government wanted a fast disposal of the matters but, on the basis of the government's "past experience," he felt, it should want a "free, open and public hearing of the charges."

Past events were "engraved on the memory of the people of B.C. and the members of this House," he said.

The minister and "those accused" should be among the first to urge an open and judicial inquiry, Mr. Perrault said.

If all were found blameless, then it would be a "triumph for this government—a triumph they don't appear to be seeking."

Nothing less than inquiry by "judicial authorities whose attitude is above suspicion"
